what our students say...

cass lee, kota kinabalu
"Although the fees are high, it is well worth it. The school is an interesting heritage building with comprehensive facilities. It is in the heart of a busy resort island so we experience 'tourism' up-close. And our lecturers are well-qualified and caring."

vivienne goh, johor bahru
"The hands-on approach is great. We get deployed to various businesses. We have our own training restaurant where we learn service and culinary skills. As students of a government school, we are highly regarded by the industry."

dilys low, johor bahru
"The biggest challenge is to work with people from different countries, cultural backgrounds and working styles. Yet, this is what I like the most. It hones my skills in interpersonal relationships and broadens my outlook. These life skills will be invaluable in the working world."

cherag bhagwandas sawlani, kuala lumpur
"I am constantly looking forward to new things coming my way. A lot happens here. Soon there will be 13 hotels here. Resorts World @ Sentosa will be our neighbour which means more employment opportunities."

eugene lee, lecturer

"Hospitality and tourism is really an exciting industry. Jobs are abundant and varied, ranging from hotels to airlines, from events to travel companies.

If you are keen on getting a head start, you can do just what our students are doing: go to a good school, learn the business, open your heart and mind, shape your attitude, and get connected."

clara chong, sandakan
"The orientation was good. I never imagined that making friends could be so enriching. Thanks to them, I have adapted well. Life in Singapore has been nothing but amazing. I am indeed privileged to be amongst such peers."

chiew ze xue, seremban
"Student life is fun as there are many activities organised by our Interest Group. There are also lots to see and do on the island. I am really enjoying myself here."

ow sheng long, johor bahru
"The lecturers are like friends; they are always there to help and guide me. They also organise field trips so that we can interact with industry professionals."
